Foreword

All ages have their greats. There are greats in science, art, music, and sports. Each one contributes his part in setting the pace of modern society.

Likewise Williston has among her graduates those who have made national and international fame--those who have made us proud to be in the Williston family.

The class of '65 wishes to honor those outstanding Willistonians in hope that they will give us the incentive to strive on that we might leave our footprints in the sands of time.

Introduction

Lives of great men all remind us

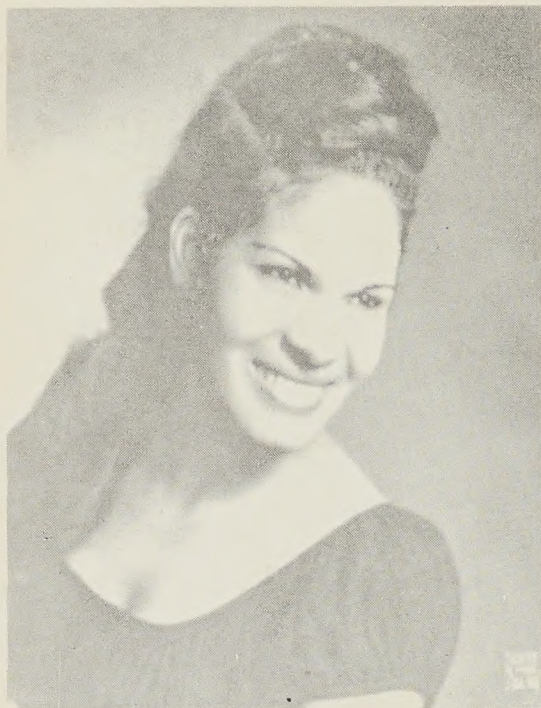

We can make our lives sublime,

And, departing, leave behind us

Footprints on the sands of time;

Joanna Owens

From the time she could talk she was talking music. At age five she played the piano by ear. The day she got the piano of her own was one of rejoicing. She played until she fell asleep on the keys. There was the beginning of the career of an extremely talented girl, Joanna Owens.

Joanna Owens is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Owens of Wilmington. She is one of nine children, all of who exited through the door of Williston.

From an early age she displayed her special God given gift of song. It was said that her golden voice poured forth from her body and soul as if by magic.

During her high school career she received constant encouragement, inspiration, and direction from her music instructor, Mrs. B. C. O'Dell and all the teachers at Williston. It was here that she decided to become a singer.

After graduating Valedictorian of her class, she went to Hampton Institute where she studied music. While at Hampton, through her vibrant personality and outstanding talent, she became known throughout the peninsula area, Virginia, and North Carolina.

Upon graduating from Hampton, she furthered her studies in New York with Robert McFerrin, Metropolitan Opera star and Madame Lotte Leonard of the Juilliar School of Music.

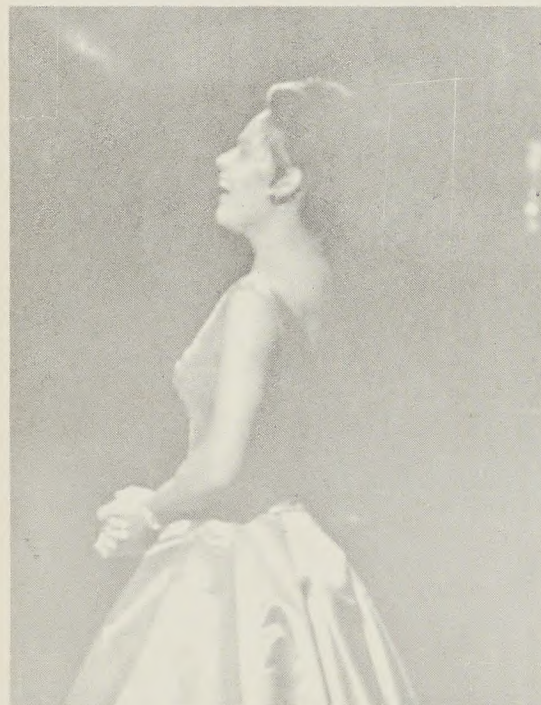

In February, 1962, Miss Owens made her debut at Carnegie Hall. Since then her performances, having included acclamable series in colleges and universities.

Last summer she appeared in "The King and I" for the opening of the New York State Theatre of the Lincoln Center for performing arts.

This summer she expects to go to Vienna where she will sing the role of Bess from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

If asked to give advice to graduating seniors, Miss Owens' advice would be: "Look to tomorrow. Set your life's goal and work hard for it. FIGHT, until you reach it. It may not always come the way you expect it, but it will come."

The world of music could fasten no greater imprints than the thrilling voice of Joanna Owens.

Ernest C. Grigg

The United States has done more than any single organization in promoting world peace. Among the many dedicated men and women striving to etch imprints of the organization in the minds of men is Ernest C. Grigg, Special Advisor for Human Resource Development Bureau of Social Affairs.

A graduate of Williston Senior High School, he went to Johnson C. Smith University where he received a B.A. degree in Economics and History and graduated Cum Laude. He also received his M.A. degree in Economical and History from New York University and Honorary Degree--Doctor of Humane Letters--from Johnson C. Smith University.

He began his professional career with the New York City Department of Welfare in 1934 as a Social Welfare Investigator and held successfully higher positions in the organizations. In 1940 he was promoted to Social Welfare Analyst in the Bureau of Public Assistance, Social Security Board, Washington, D. C. In this assignment he was Plan Reviewer for nine Midwestern States.

From this position he was elevated to U.N. Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and the International Refuge Organization which had its headquarters in Germany. In this capacity he has traveled throughout Europe, the Middle East, and Africa, and from 1952-1957 served as UN Advisor to countries of the Middle East.

Presently Ernest Grigg is Director of the Human Resources Development Bureau. In this capacity, he has just completed a mission to Morocco where he was part of a four man team to develop the general lines of action and recommend approval of a $50 million development project in that country.

William Streets

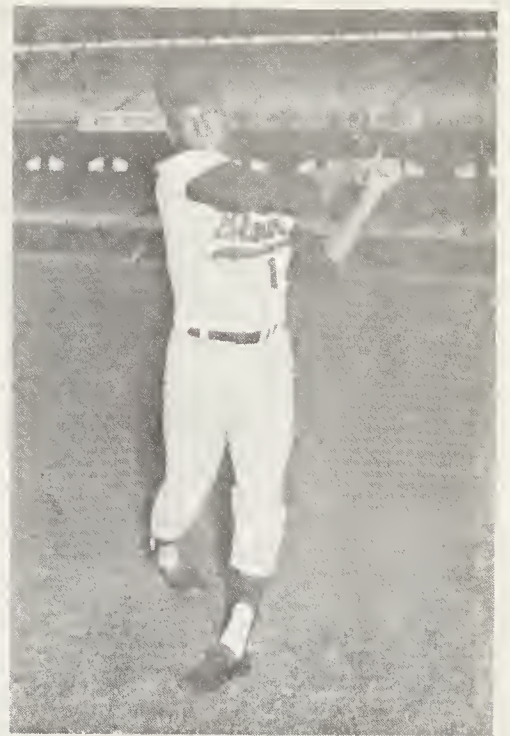

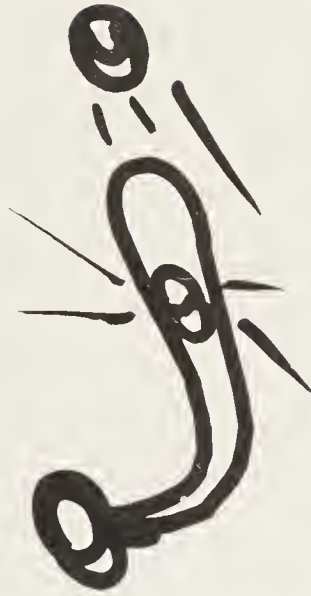

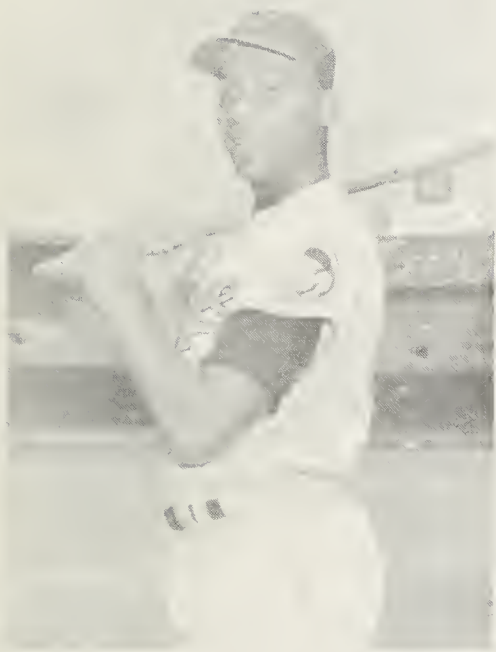

From the doors of Williston, William Streets has placed his imprint on the continent of Africa.

He was born in Wilmington, on March 23, 1937. He attended the public schools of Wilmington and graduated from Williston in 1955.

From this point he studied at Lane College, Jackson, Tennessee, majoring in History. In 1959 he received a B A. degree and in 1960 he received the M.A. degree in History from North Carolina College.

In May of 1961, he was given an East African Fellowship to study the History, culture and language of the East African countries of Kenya, Uganda, and Tanzania. After completing the course at Columbia University, he continued the same course at Makere College, Kampala, Uganda.

In August, 1961, he was appointed as an Educator by the Agency for International Development to serve for two years. Since then he has received another two year contract and continues to do his part in promoting world peace by promoting the progress of its underprivileged people.

Sam Bowens, Jr.

"When Bowens hits, Baltimore wins" So ran the headlines as Sam Bowens, graduate of Williston Senior High School in 1956, began his professional baseball career.

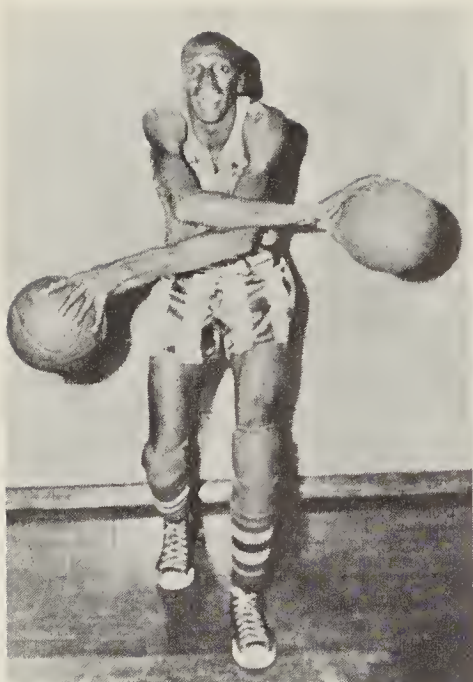

A run-down of his high school athletic record shows that from the very beginning he had the makings of a pro.

He served as Captain of the football team and star quarterback for three years. In addition he was Captain and top scorer as a basketball forward, a hard-hittin outfielder and a track runner.

The first four letter award winner Williston ever had, he made all state in basketball, baseball and football. Mr. Washington in an interview recalls Bowens as the "best all-around athlete in the 12 years I've been here!" His keen plays brought Williston the championship in football 1955, champion baseball in 1956, and 2nd place in baseball in 1957.

Although he attended Tennessee A & T on a basketball scholarship, he is now regular right fielder for the Baltimore Orioles. 1964 was the first season out for the 6' 2" - 190 pounds slugger but proved a good one. Bowens just seemed to have a "hot streak" and held a batting average of .280 ... including 18 home runs and 58 runs batted in.

Sam is one of three sons of Mr. & Mrs. Samuel Bowens who live at 415 South 13th Street in Wilmington. He has two brothers, Harold and Fred Bowens. Harold, the oldest of the threesome, is a teacher at Hillside High School in Durham. Fred, the youngest, finished Vorhees Junior College in South Carolina. Sam is married and has two children, Jeff Bowens, who is four, and Kimberry Bowens, who is 2. His wife, Mrs. Pheola Marion Bowens, a native of Indianapolis, Indiana, was a student at Tennessee State before they were married.

Meadow - Lark - Lemon

Some people can do an amusing stunt and receive just a few hand claps, but a man like Meadow Lark Lemon can do that same stunt and get an ovation.

A product of Williston Senior High School, it was here that he gained his athletic stardom. He was "All State" for three years in both basketball and football--playing center on the basketball team and end on football.

The Globetrotters started scouting him for his natural talent for comedy which always seemed second nature to him. Of course it took more than a talent for comedy--it took real basketball skill. Lemon showed evidence of his ability very early in his career when he scored 65 points in three quarters of one single game.

During his nine years with the Globetrotters he has played before crowds of every description and size. He has met personalities like Krushchev when the Globetrotters packed a 16,000 capacity arena for nine straight games in Moscow.

The highlights of his career came in 1964 when he visited Pope Paul VI in Vatican City during an European tour and entertained His Holiness with an exhibition of the Globetrotter's ball handling artistry.

From Rome, Meadow Lark has left his imprint in England, Belgium, France, Switzerland, Germany, The Netherlands, Austria, Yugoslavia, Italy, Ireland, and Scotland.

Lemon openly expresses real love for basketball and hopes that his youth and physical fitness will allow him to be active with the Globetrotters for many more years.

Althea Gibson

"I Wanted To Be Somebody"

"I wanted to be somebody." No other words could sum the life of Althea Gibson better than these. From the streets of Harlem, she made her way before the queen of England and from the lowly state of a drop-out her autobiography, "I Wanted to Be Somebody" has placed her name on the Best Sellers List.

Miss Gibson was discovered as she played in the Young Womens Tennis Division in New York. Interested parties noted her tennis ability and brought her to Wilmington, where she was encouraged to enter Williston Senior High School. There she took an active part in the girls basketball team and other sports. With the faith and encouragement of several teachers, she managed to bridge the gap left by dropping out and graduated in 1954.

After high school she attended Florida A & M where she was varsity star in both basketball and tennis.

She won the US Amatuer Tennis title in 1957 and 1958. Then she went on to capture the Wimbledon Cup. This represents the height in the tennis world.

In addition to her ability as a tennis player, she is a singer, musician, actress (she appeared in a movie that starred John Wayne), billiard player and bowler.

Miss Gibson firmly believes that we as human beings always have something to give. When you have done your best in one endeavor, strive on to reach your height in another for you cannot live on the fruits of the first success forever. It is with this philosophy in mind that Althea Gibson is now entering the field of golf. With her positive attitude and the hard work, she is willing to put in, she's sure to pull through. She always wanted to be somebody. There is no doubt she will reach her goal.

Barbara Ferguson

This picture was taken at Johnson C. Smith University--May 1962. It was taken on the occasion of a speech given by Dr. J. H. Robinson director of Crossroads Africa. The program was sponsored by The University Student of which I was editor at the time. Seated left to right--Peter Gufwoli--Kenya; Seth Anthony--Togo; Barbara Ferguson; Arletta Smallwood--N. C.; Gershen Fiawoo--Ghana; Standing left to right--Dr. A. H. George--Dean of J. C. Smith seminary; Paul Kasper--Tanzania; Alice Lyerly--N. C.; Sami Mansour--Jordan; Sandra Douglas--Fayetteville, former volunteer in Liberia; Ayodele Jiboku and her husband Simon--Nigeria (I visited his sister and parents when I was in Nigeria); Shirley Williams--S. C.

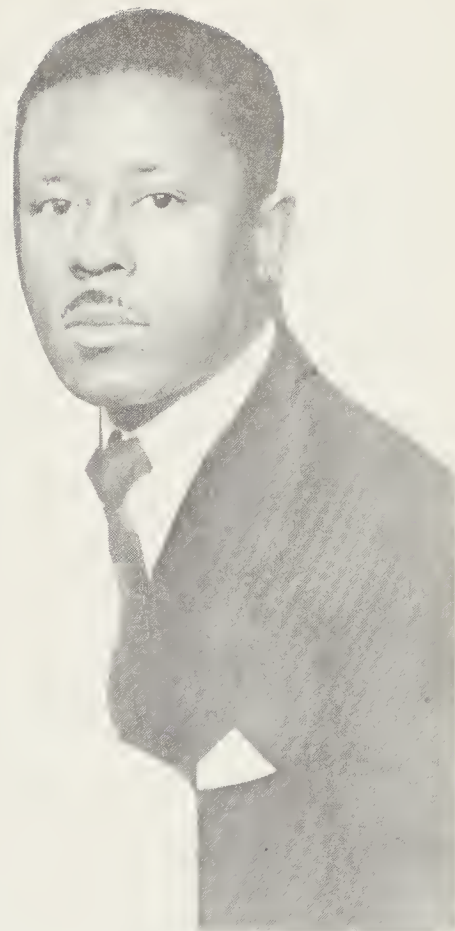

Much praise has been given to the Peace Corp for their undying devotion in developing the mind of the people in Liberia.

Sharing in its commendable work is Barbara Ferguson, graduate of Williston Senior High School in 1959. After high school, she attended Johnson C. Smith University where she majored in Mathematics. During her four years there, she was a very active member of the NAACP, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and the United Negro College Fund Secretary. For two years, she served as editor of the University Student and as a reporter for the Queen City Gazette. Some of her articles have appeared in the Charlotte Observer. In the spring of 1962 she was an exchange student and editor at University of Dubuque, Dubuque, Iowa. In the spring of 1963 she attended the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Conference where The University Student received a second place among colleges and universities around the United States.

Miss Ferguson began her work with the Peace Corp in the summer of 1963 when she trained at Syracuse University for Peace Corp, Liberia. She arrived in Liberia in September, 1963, where she was assigned to teach in Tappita Public School, 250 miles from the capital city of Monrovia. In June, 1964 she began teaching Mathematics and Science in Tappita Junior High and in September, 1964, she began teaching Junior High English-Literature Composition. She served in other capacities as Track coach to a girls track team, advisor to Tappita Time, and Dean of Women of Tappita Public Schools. During her vacation she has spent two weeks in the Ivory Coast, two weeks in Nigeria, and three weeks in Uganda.

Miss Ferguson's two years with the Peace Corps end July, 1965.

Dr. Spencer Durant

The strong and inspiring devotion of a good teacher is important to build our democratic ideals both at home and abroad. The Peace Corp does its part in providing well trained men and women who are ready to give long hours of time and patience to teach the under-privileged in foreign countries.

Among these devoted Americans is Dr. Spencer Durant. He attended the public schools of New Hanover County, graduating from Williston Senior High School in 1935. Throughout his high school career he maintained a commendable academic record and ranked first among the members of his graduating class.

After graduation, Dr. Durant attended Shaw University in Raleigh, North Carolina, completing his requirements for certification in undergraduate work. He received his Masters Degree and Doctors Degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

He has held the position of principal of the 9th Avenue School in Hendersonville, Carver High School in Mt. Olive and the Second Ward High School in Charlotte. During his years as principal, he was an active participant in the North Carolina Teachers Association. Prior to leaving Mt. Olive he was president of the Coastal Plains Teachers Association.

Dr. Spencer Durant is presently affiliated with the staff of Federal Advance Teachers College, Yaba, Lagos, Nigeria, Africa.

County Officials

Dr. William H. Wagoner, Superintendent of the New Hanover County Schools, is a graduate of Wake Forest College and prepared for his present position through grade study at East Carolina College and the University of North Carolina, where he received the doctor of philosophy degree.

Advocating preparation, the Superintendent plans and executes one of the finest educational programs in North Carolina. New Hanover County, long recognized for outstanding students, has continued, under his administration, to produce individuals who "seek horizons new and use their stamina and brains . . . to really think and do."

His efficient staff of assistants help in every way to make better schools for our future citizens.

The success of the school depends upon the superior excellence of the faculty and of the student body.

Our principal plans and coordinates the entire school, always striving for excellence. His efficient leadership can be seen through the many accomplishments of our school.

Principal Washington's interest in the student body is exemplified through his many talks to them, his consultations with individuals, and his enthusiastic support of their activities. His goal is perfection and he works untiringly toward this goal. He has been an inspiration to those who have already made footsteps in the sand.

Assistant Principal

Assistant Principal James H. Harris, Jr.

Assistant Principal Harris is always active and alert, serving as the financial supervisor of the activity program.

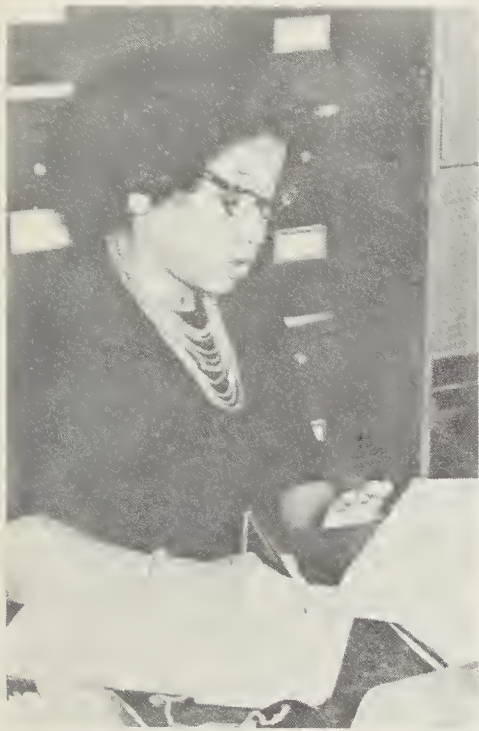

Known as "jack of all trades," to faculty members and students, he progressed through the positions of a mathematics and science teacher. He is an indefatigable and altruistic worker for the improvement of our school. A flair for photography places him in an exceptional category which includes many talents.

The courses provided by the English Department attempt to develop within students a desire for clear thinking and intelligent expression. They encourage creative ability and help pupils to appreciate our great literary heritage through the study of outstanding works of many authors. The purposes of developing an appreciation of life's values and good citizenship are involved.

The basic concern is the management of language for effective communication, which is essential to everyday living. In school, language is the only means whereby other subject matter may be taught and consumed.

Willistonians have made good use of the communication skills which they gained in this department and have thus been most successful in their chosen walks of life. They made significant footprints in the sands of time because of the mastery of their native tongue.

Art

MR. J. T. BOONE

The art education program today attempts to recognize that current trends in art experiences, concepts and techniques are fashioned to challenge the needs of our time for all students. The role of the past with its broad historical background holds a key position in the program, for through our knowledge and understanding, deeper meaning and better comprehension is realized to embellish art as a living life drama.

Art appreciation is based on participation as well as contact with original works of art. Various kinds of media provide for individual needs and challenge effectiveness.

From the time of the prehistoric cave dwellers at Altimira in Spain, through that of the ancient Greeks and the Renaissance Europeans, to that of modern apartment dwellers in New York City, man has sought to bring beauty into his life with works of art. Why man creates art is a mystery, yet create it he has--in all periods of his existence, in all places and all nations.

Willistonians have joined in the expression of art as a theory and record of man's aspirations and pursuits of ideals in beauty and form. Freely, they interpret, through painting and sculpture, social conditions and racial and national ideals. Through unconfined production of art, they express inner contemplations of life and nature, thus, leaving impressive footprints in the sands of time.

Music

MRS. B. C. O'DELL
VOCAL MUSIC

Music is the universal language. The courses offered develop vocal and instrumental skills by providing a sound knowledge of music theory, experiences for the specially talented, opportunities for performance and enjoyment of creativity and self-expression. Through written notes instead of words, students may receive messages of joy, sorrow, nobility, fun and beauty, which music has to bring with an understanding for all people of all times.

Consider music in the life of man. Man's deepest feelings are expressed through music, from great joy to heartfelt sorrow. The phonograph and radio bring music to people of all parts of the world, while concerts and operas provide pleasure and relaxation to thousands. Music in industrial plants helps to keep workers contented and more productive. And individual music making furnishes entertainment and refreshment to all who participate.

Through the examples cited as representing music in the life of man, one may realize the importance of a knowledge and appreciation of this art. As no part of this world is without some form of music, it is clear that there is a spontaneous impulse in man to sing, dance, and play upon instruments, however crudely the latter may be made.

Willistonians have been subject to these impulses toward music and have thus made great strides in the past and present. As professional musicians, they have become renown concert artists and performers of popular music. With music, the universal tongue understood by all men, Willistonians have made great footsteps in the sands of time.

Social Studies

The Social Science Department of Williston Senior High School offers its students World History, a survey course in man's historical background, United States History, the final course of history in public schools where students get an understanding of and an appreciation for achievements, customs, and beliefs of the American way of life; American government, a course including the structure and function of national, state, and local government; Economics leading to a deeper understanding of economic processes and problems; while sociology and family life cover the areas of historical, cultural, and biological backbone of society.

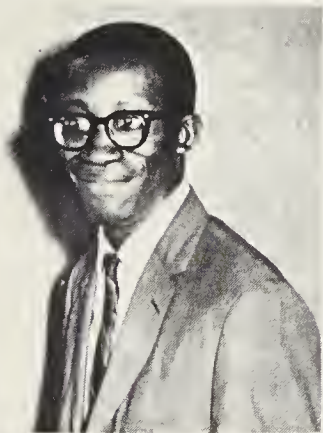

Those who attempt to keep the students in the above courses are Hassell, Hawkins, Bryant, Telfair, Keith, Walker, Lowe, and Hooper.

The instructors are and have been very happy to stand by and watch a few of the footprints still left in the sands of time as Barbara Ferguson, William Streets and Dr. Ernest Grigg made deep impressions.

Barbara Ferguson was selected to be a Peace Corps Trainee for a Liberian project. William Streets, a teacher of social studies in Africa, and Dr. Ernest Grigg holds his place in the U.N.

The mastery of mathematics an essential ingredient of the education of youth. Several courses are offered so as to meet the needs of all students. Unless an understanding of this science is gained, our modern way of living will not progress.

Through the following illustration, one may see that mathematics is actually a branch of human activity concerned with the arrangement of such things as number, quality and form. In business mathematics helps manufacturers count their profits and losses. Large amounts of information may be arranged and studied according to statistics. Mathematics in engineering helps in the designing of modern structures and vehicles.

The mathematics department seeks to fulfill the practical needs of students for coping with problems of number and measurement and hopes to give students a better understanding of the universe around them. The skills they master in mathematics are really footprints in the sands of time made in the anticipation of a progressive society.

MR. J. M. HOWIE

The physical plant of the department consists of a biology laboratory and lecture room, a chemistry laboratory and lecture room, and a physics laboratory. The courses provided involve the studies of living things and phenomena of matter and energy.

Science has many responsibilities to our security and material welfare. It is one of man's most powerful and noble means for searching out truth and for augmenting man's dignity by augmenting his understanding. The instructors of this department have the obligation of making the true character of science better understood by advocacy of the balanced presentation of the scientific spirit as one of the great methods by which man can increase his knowledge and understanding, yet remain humble before the wonder and majesty of what he does not understand.

This department has helped to educate many outstanding people, as well as laymen in many areas. In this changing society, students who strive to make important footprints in the sands of time continue to realize that science presents a golden opportunity for discovery.

The study of a foreign language is viewed as an integration of linguistic skills, cultural knowledge and attitudes of understanding and appreciation of other people.

Our foreign language department in keeping with the national trend of teaching the living language through five essential steps uses the aural-oral approach in Recognition, Imitation, Repetition, Variation, and Selection. In order to achieve our goal, we make consistent use of the tape recorder, language laboratory, film strips and records. Cultural background material pertaining to the countries in which the languages are spoken and supplementary books, magazines and newspapers.

Through guidance in this department, Willistonians have gained a full understanding of their neighbors around the world and a preparation for communication in foreign tongues. One progressive Willistonian makes use of the training he received in this department in holding a position of importance in the United Nations. He joins others who make footsteps in the sands of time in order to create a sense of international harmony and world peace.

MR. E. A. CORBIN

MISS A. R. BLOUNT

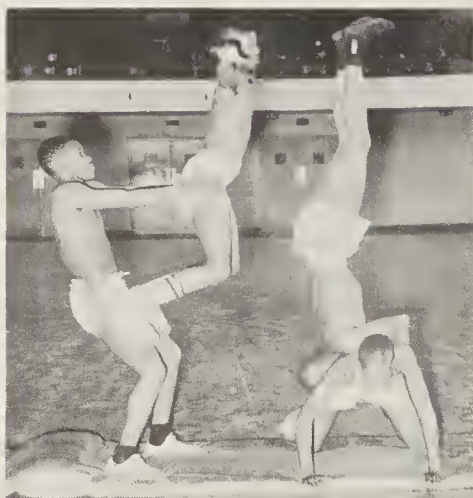

The courses in physical education provide activities that should result in biological improvements in strength, endurance and agility; skills in games and sports; social values, character development, leadership challenges and the proper use of leisure time. Thus activities are provided which develop physical strength, organic vigor, and endurance as well as mental and emotional health for the individual and the group. Total fitness is stressed along with personal satisfaction. The practical training gained is applied to a person's daily living in growth, food, rest, exercise, and recreation. It gives the student important experience in living as a member of a group as well as in being an individual.

Willistonians make broad footprints in the sands of time because of healthy bodies as well as strong minds.

 The best ones in the nation.
 He drills and drives from day to day

 And boost morale to give each boy

 Yet every player's problems get

 And as he strives to shape the skill
 That wins his competition,

Trade and industrial education at Williston Senior High School is a balanced program of studies and work experiences designed within the objectives and philosophical concept of the school that "all youth need to develop salable skills and those understandings and attitudes that make the worker an intelligent and productive participant in our American economic life." Studies and work experience are correlated in terms of students' needs, interest and abilities to the end of the objectives sought.

Man has to work if he is to be associated with our form of society. The perpetuation of society hinges on man's ability to render useful services. Whenever an individual is unable to render some service, he becomes a liability to society. Moreover, technological leadership is so essential for security and continuance of the American standards of living, rests to a large extent on how well its citizenry can be trained to perform useful work. Vocational trade and industrial education at Williston, then, is a medium that safeguards both human and natural resources . . . with its footprints in the sands of the community, state, nation, and world.

Since all persons are participants in business activities this department is obligated to prepare students for business activities common to all adults. Therefore the department is organized to be of service to all youth.

The business department attempts to help students through meaningful experiences to improve their speech, reading, and writing abilities and the ability to handle numbers. It also helps develop character and an understanding of social and civic responsibilities. The department also provides students with necessary skills for earning a livelihood and becoming economically literate.

In the light of recent educational trends the students of business are continually made aware of the latest trends in business, the vocational possibilities of the business field and the importance of business training.

Looking back we can point with pride to the many graduates in whose footsteps the students now enrolled would like to follow. A great number of offices are staffed by our graduates. Others are employed as bookkeepers, sales persons, key-punch operators, a bank teller, and insurance agents.

Courses offered in this department actually project the concept that "home is where the heart is." And pupils gain "the heart" through instruction in the various home areas of food, clothing, child care, management, hygiene, and planning. Emphasis is placed upon individual development and the necessity for adjustments for happy family living.

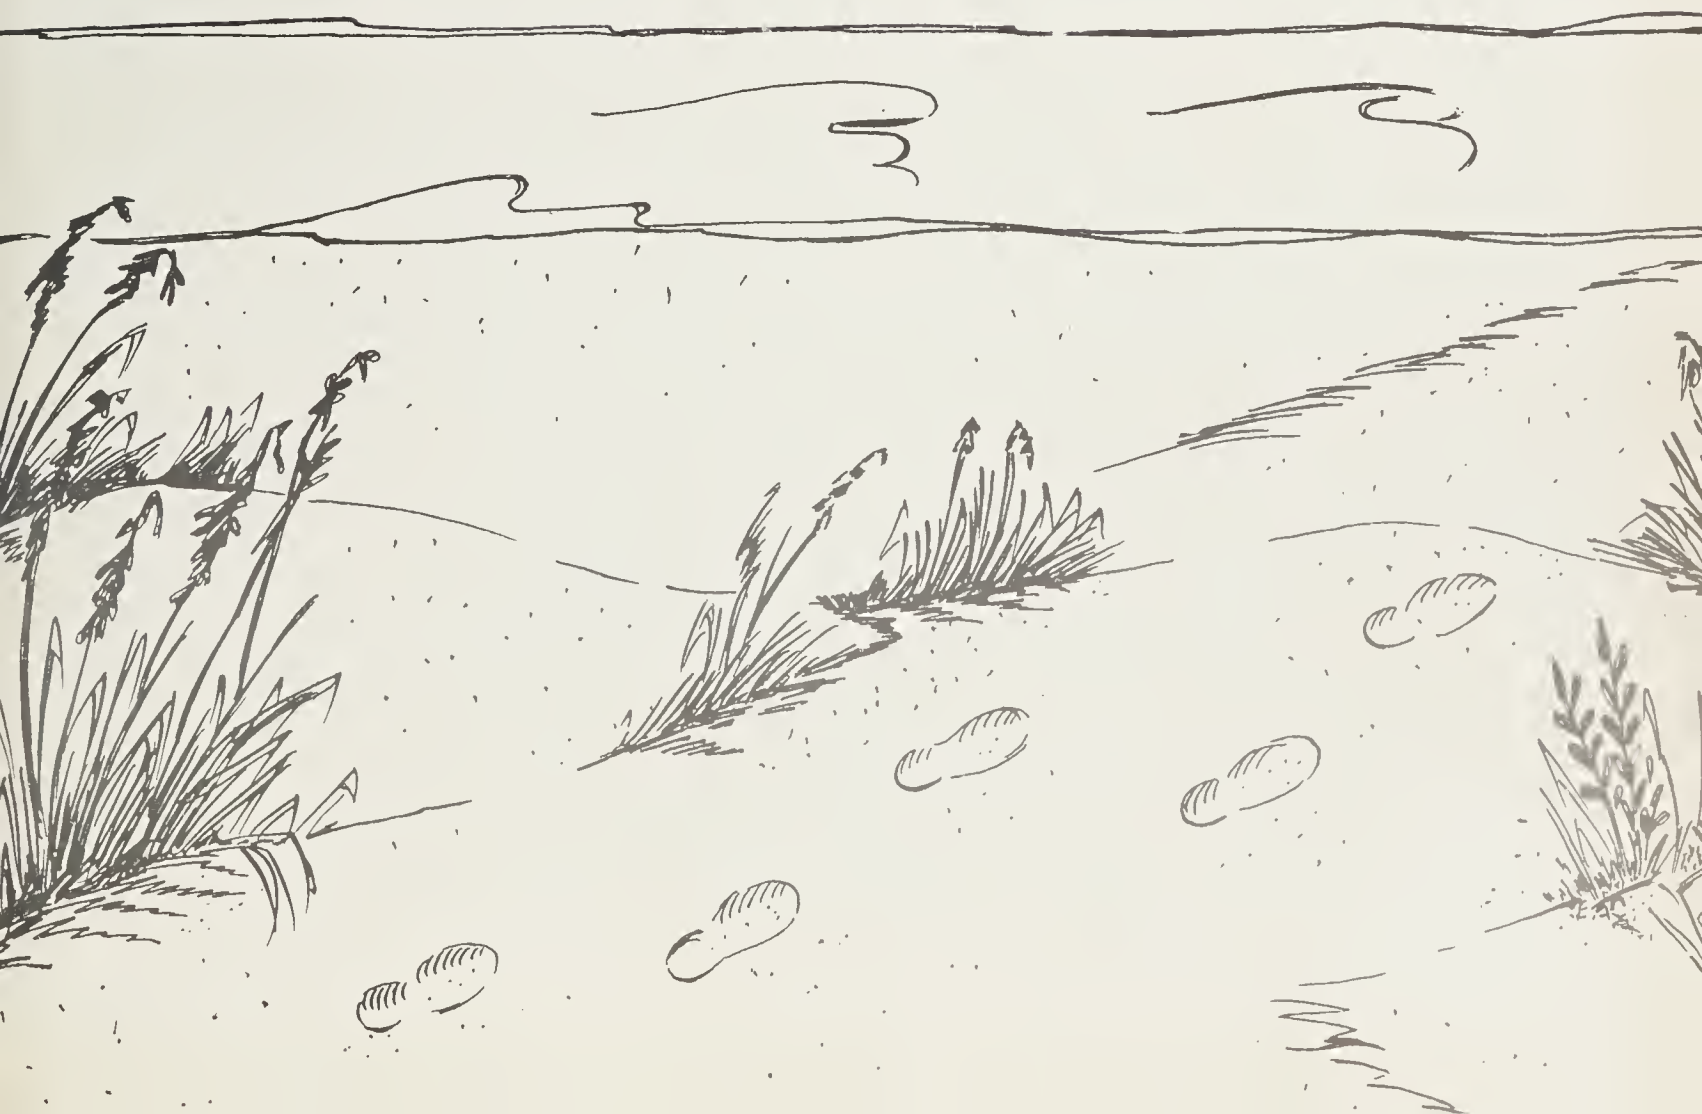

The experiences gained in this department aid students in dealing with situations of everyday living. Many personal needs and interests such as selection and care of clothing, personal budgeting, food selection and nutrition, child development and development of an understanding of wholesome relationships with the family and friends both sexes, are fulfilled.

"No man is an island, entire of itself; Each man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main." With this concept in mind, students of home economics are prepared to live in accord with their fellowmen. Many receive training for careers in the arts or sciences of homemaking. "Home is where the heart is," and Willistonians make footprints in the sands of time toward that end.

National Honor Society

INSTALLATION

The eternal lights of scholastic achievement glow brighter through the knowledge of students that upon reaching the height of academic level there is waiting the honor of belonging to the National Honor Society.

The purpose of the National Honor Society is to create an enthusiasm for achievement; to stimulate a desire to render service to promote worthy leadership and to encourage the development of character in students.

Sports

In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of Life.
Be not dumb, driven cattle!
Be a hero in the strife.

It has been almost a habit for WILLISTON to rank very high in sports as well as academics. The teams have made high showings in baseball, football, basketball, track, and at times tennis.

To the coaching staff we take off our hats for the efforts and time that is contributed in helping to build the fine young men and women in our school, for it is through their efforts that many of our graduates have achieved success in the world of sports and have brought honor and prestige to our school.

JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM

Standing-Manager William Webb, Horace James, Mitchell Pryor, James Davis, Oliver Amos, Anthony Perry, Marshall Boney, and R. O. Hawkins, Coach.

This team will probably be the nucleus of the Varsity Basketball Team next year. Fine coaching and the ability to carry out the teams patterns and plays made this team very successful.

With the sure ball handling of Rudolph Washington and Daniel Pellem the JV's went on to rank high in the standings.

Standing: Joseph McAllister, Charles White, Walter Haze, Marvin Brewington, Jimmy Bennett, Joseph Ferguson, Manager Leroy Upperman, Charles Baldwin, Kenneth Noble, Eli McCrimmon, Conrad Pridgen, Levi Williams, Coach R. O. Hawkins. Not shown, Thomas E. Grady.

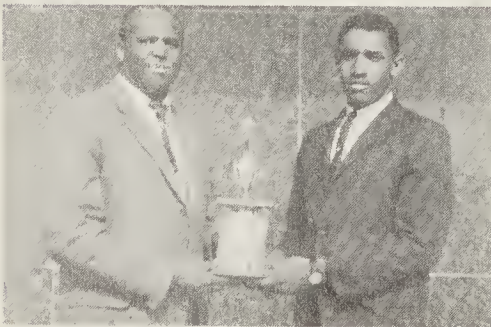

HURDLING!

Since Coach Hawkins' arrival at Williston, the track team has been taken on new life. Because of his inspiration and push, Coach Hawkins and his track team of 1965 took first place in the district. With the motto: "We shall overcome." The mighty tigers went on to be rated No. 1 in the State. "Nice going Tigers."
